This is your own personal journal

You can use this journal any way you like. You can skip pages, come back to the same pages multiple times, and use the writing prompts to help you think about your feelings and goals.

You'll find some ideas for how to process all the emotions you may be feeling during the school year and areas to write down your own ideas. You can share your thoughts with your family, friends, or teachers if you'd like.

FOCUSING ON GOOD THINGS OR HAPPY THINGS DURING THE DAY CAN BOOST YOUR MOOD.

They can be big things (I got a new puppy today!) or small things (I got a compliment from a friend today).

Thinking about things you are grateful for can also help you focus on the positive things in your day. You can write what you are grateful for below. It could be having a good friend to talk to, eating your favorite snack, or getting a good grade on a test.

What are 3 good things or 3 things to be grateful for today?

Even though the world can be stressful, there's still a lot to appreciate.

Think about some of the things that you may not have noticed before or some of the good things that you appreciate now (I get to spend more time outside or I have more time to watch movies with my family).
